Jones Packaging Inc. Announces Significant Investment, Unveils New Identity and Changes Name to Jones Healthcare Group

Company Celebrates 100 Years in Wellness and Commitment to Advancing Healthcare Through Packaging for the Next Century

London, ON — Jones Packaging Inc., a market leader in advanced packaging and medication dispensing solutions, today unveils a new corporate identity as the company celebrates 100 years serving health and wellness markets. At the centre of the new identity is a change of the company name to Jones Healthcare Group and an updated corporate logo.

As Jones Healthcare Group, the company also positions itself against an aggressive growth strategy with plans to invest $20 million into the business over the next two years.

“Over a century ago, Jones provided apothecary packaging to help pharmacists safely dispense medication to patients,” says Ron Harris, President & CEO at Jones. “One thing has never wavered since our beginning – we have always been focused on wellness. It’s in our DNA.”

Through its three business units and two European subsidiaries, Venalink UK and Venalink Spain, the company’s new identity aligns closely with a continued vision to advance healthcare with progressive packaging platforms that put consumer well-being first and respond to evolving market needs.

“We offer our clients a unique expertise across a range of health and wellness sectors,” says Christine Jones Harris, Principal, Corporate Development at Jones. “And as an organization rooted in innovation, we collaborate with global government regulators and agencies, educational institutions and advocacy groups to understand what’s important to consumers and build solutions for the future, such as connected and intelligent packaging.”

With the launch of its new name and logo, the company has released an updated corporate website at www.joneshealthcaregroup.com to share its story and commitment to packaging the future of healthcare through the next century.
